COULD NOT HIT CROSS

THE REDS FOUND HIM SAFELY ONLY EIGHT TIMES.

Hoosiers Knocked Phillips Out of the Box in the Third-Latham Tries to Bully Pastorius.

A "scrappy" game of ball was played yesterday between Mr. Brush's two teams, resulting in a score of 3 to 2, with chances that the tables would have been turned in favor of the Hooslers if rain had not interfered in the beginning of the ninth inning, with McCarthy on second and only one out. Hot words were passed, and at one time Harvey Pastorius picked up a bat and would have damaged Latham's head if other players had not interfered and took the bat from him. Gettinger is an exceeo.ngly fast runner, and on an infield hit reached first about a tie with the ball. Pastorius called him safe, and a howl went up from Latham, who demanded that a new umpire be selected. In the war of words that followed Latham called Pastorius some vile names that would not look well in print. In an instant Pastorius secured a bat and was on the run for Latham, with blood in his eye. Other players knew that Pastorius would hardly be responsible for what might occur under the great provocation, and stopped him in time to save Latham a broken head. Chauncey Fisher was then put in to umpire. With the exception of the "scrapping," which was indulged in continually, much to the delight of the occupants of the bleachers, the game was a clean one and full of fine ball playing. Cross showed up in excellent shape, and won over to him many who had heretofore rated him as outclassed by other pitchers in the team. He gave only one man a base on balls and held the visitors down to eight hits, while twelve hits were secured by the home team. In the third inning Phillips was knocked out and Rhines was put in the box. There was good playing on both sides, with no attempt to make it a "dirty" game. In the eighth inning Vaughn made an unassisted double play. Cross took rather a large lead off first, and Vaughn caught Canavan's liner in time to beat Cross to first.

The bellicose Hogriever of last year appeared this time in the capacity of peacemaker. He seemed to be the only one of either team that counseled conservatism when arguments arosé, and in that way earned a deeper place in the hearts of the Hoosier "fans" that he has held heretofore, although he has been a favorite since he appeared with Sloux City last year. put in the box. There was good playing since he appeared with Sioux City last year.

The Hoosiers opened the game by making two outs, but Newell's double, aided by Motz's single, earned a run. A single and a double was all the credit gained in the second inning, and in the third Newell repeated his play of the first inning by sending a ball near the left field fence for two bases, but was left at second when the side was retired. Two singles and a stolen base counted for an earned run in the fourth. McCarthy hunted the left-field fence for two bases and stole third, but that was as much as could be done in the fifth. One much as could be done in the fifth. One hit was secured in the sixth, which, with a base on balls and a muff in right field by Miller, allowed three men to reach bases, two of whom were left there at the end of two of whom were left there at the end of the inning, with no runs to the credit of the side. One hit and a life left a man on hase in the seventh. On account of Vaugn's double play two hits counted for naught in the eighth, but in the ninth the Hoosiers seemed almost certain of at least tying the score, when a drenching rain ended the game. McCarthy got a single and stole second, while Newell knocked a fly to Gray, going out. When Motz came to the bat it began to sprinkle a little, and Latham took that as a pretext to argue the point of calling the game. Two or three minutes' delay was caused, when the rain began falling harder, and suddenly everybody made a run for the grand stand. Latham immediately gathered up his men, crowded them into a bus and started for town. In ten minutes the rain had ceased sufficiently that the game might have been finished, with the chances largely in favor of Indianapolis tying the score. sufficiently that the game might have been finished, with the chances largely in favor of Indianapolis tying the score.

The visitors did not start the game as was expected of a National League team. Latham gof a single, but dallied too much at first, and was caught napping with too large a lead by McFarland. A fly out and a grounder to White retired the side. Two flies and a beautifully handled grounder by Newell ended the second. Phillips got a two-bagger, but went no further in the third, and in the fourth a base on balls, a stolen base and McFarland's wild throw came near securing a run, but a fly into McCarthy's hands left Hogriever on third. Three hits counted for two earned runs in the fifth, tying the score at that point. In the sixth Hoy went out on a fly to Henry, and Miller followed with a two-bagger. Hogriever then came to the bat and knocked a high fly just over Canavan's head. It was called for Henry, and he made a brave attempt to get it, but muffed it after a long, hard run. Smith went out on a fly to center, advancing Miller and Hogriever, and then came a peculiar play. Hogriever was on second, and in a taunting way dared Cross to throw the ball. He purposely took a good start, as if about to run to third base, and finally Cross threw the ball, allowing Miller to score. Except for this play the score would have been tied. The side without a hit, and in the eighth two hits were made but no runs were scored. The score:

Archbishop Kenrick's Will. ST. He brands the story that Archbishop Kenrick's will has been lost as untrul, and says that it is now in his (Kain's) possession. Furthermore, he states that there is an attest copy of the will in the hands of Archbishop Hennessey, at Dubuque, Ia. The coadjutor also said that the visit of Archbishop Ryan, of Philadelphia, to St. Louis is partly social and partly on business pertaining to the hierarchy.

LEXINGTON, Ky., April 26,-With about two thousand people on the grounds, the Kentucky Association began its sixty-ninth annual spring meeting this afternoon. The track was very fast. Jockey Chorn Rode Best. MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 26.-The best wo-year-old race of the meeting was on the card at Montgomery Park this afternoon-the Bramble stakes. Loads of money went in on the Hot Springs entry, Lady Iniz, Ben Eder and Concession, and the fact that they were beaten out was due to Chorn's masterly riding on Pat Dunne's Marsian, which was at 4 to I in the books. The track was very muddy, which probably accounts for Lady Inex's poor showing. To-morrow is "get-away" day, and the largest crowd of the meeting is expected. Carver Kills 99 Out of 100. SCRANTON, Pa., April 26.-At the driving park here this afternoon, Dr. Carver, of Kansas City, and Harry Swartz, of this city, shot the second of their matches. Carver killed 99 birds out of 100. He missed the ninety-first bird. Swartz stopped shooting on the seventy-fifth bird, having killed but sixty-two.

Removal of Garbage. To the Editor of the Indianapolis Journal: The suggestion of Mr. Campbell regarding the number of teams required to remove garbage leads me to give the substance of an interview with a trustworthy collector, who has built up a fine business in his eighteen years of continuous experience in this city. His opinions, founded upon personal observations, made not only here, but in St. Louis, Chicago and Cinhere, but in St. Louis, Chicago and Cincinnati, are worthy, I think, of as much consideration, if not more, than those of any inexperienced citizen. He claims that the garbage of the city cannot be removed by less than two hundred teams; that one man with a two-horse team cannot "get away" with more than four or, perhaps five squares. "That is," he added, "if he keeps it as clean as he ought to." He says the late contractor had but twenty-seven teams, and consequently great quantities of garbage were untouched. He thinks the city should pay for removal, since by that method only can the collection of absolutely all of it be enforced; that many collectors will apply for the job for $1.60 per day, but as soon as they get more remunerative work they will, at that price, drop their job without giving notice, and the district will be left to the dogs. He claims that for $2.50 per day good, reliable collectors can be found to do the work, "who will stay right with it from year in to year out." He advocates the rigid reporting of all shirks, and not giving pay except for steady, reliable work. It seems a pity to give the work out to contractors who will push out of the business these old reliable collectors.

take a little Carlsbad Sprudel Salt in a glass full of water. That will set you right and keep you right, if you're inclined to be bilious or dyspeptic or constipated.

People wonder, sometimes, why it is that the Carlsbad treatment, the world's remedy for habitual constipation, should be recommended for diarrhœa and such disorders, too. Simply, because it leads the stomach and bowels naturally into a healthy condition, whatever their derangements-it doesn't accomplish its results by harmful irritation, as most pills and purgatives do.

Beware of imitations sold as "improved" or "artificial" Carisbad Salt.

The only genuine Carlsbad Salt, with all the properties of the Sprudel Spring solidified, has the seal of the city of Carlsbad and the signature of "EISNER & MENDELSON Co., Agents, New York," on every bottle others are worthless imitatio
